

SAINTS, when your priests counsel you to obey orders, answer "Mountain Meadows!"

THE butcher of the Morrisites held forth in that blood-stained Tabernacle pulpit, last Sunday.

THE Mountain Meadows ticket was elected yesterday, because Brigham Young so ordered it.

SUNDAY, for a day of heat long drawn out, was a great success. Yesterday was nearly as hot.

FRIENDS of education should not fail to attend the Normal Institute, during its sessions this week.

THE question at Beaver last week was: What does Bishop Spicer mean, and who is he defending, anyhow?

THREE bricks from Walkers' Pioneer Mill, weighing 4,273 ounces, and worth $5,291, came in on Sunday night.

THE Chicago Inter-Ocean thinks the Salt Lake Herald can find criminal news enough in Utah, without going to Europe or the States.

THE Scientific Press of July 31st, comes to us with an illustration of the Mountain Meadows Massacre. The picture is not overdrawn, by any means.

THE best thing the Mormon papers can do, says the Virginia Enterprise, is to keep quiet. The free press of the land are now doing the talking.

THE Church ticket used at the election yesterday had a heading printed in Deseret alphabet. As near as we are able to translate, it means Mountain Meadows.

THE Mormon papers find great comfort in abusing the witnesses in the Lee trial. When Saints tell the truth, they are invariably abused by the Church and its press serfs.

VERY little interest was taken in the election yesterday, hundreds of Liberals refusing to go to the polls, looking upon the whole thing as a farce, under the present election law.

THE, enthusiastic gentleman who gets up in his night-shirt at three o'clock in the morning, to read the news, says he would not take fifty dollars for his last week's file of THE TRIBUNE.

UTAH is the only country on earth where the pretended followers of Christ serenade murderers—and Brigham Young's Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints is the only Church that indulges in such practices. Reason—because its leader is the prince of murderers.

AN Apostate Mormon who came over the Mountain Meadows, six months after the massacre, says that many skulls of the dead were scattered over the field, bearing lead-pencil inscriptions. On one skull he read, "Damn the emigrants." On another, "Damn the Gentiles." And on another, "To hell with the damned Gentiles."

THE S. T. Chronicle of Saturday says: "The Mormons of Beaver do not like United States Marshal Maxwell and his ways. In fact, they have a prejudice against him. The young Mormon hoodlums of Beaver, when well filled with old rye, flourish their six-shooters and bowie knives, and talk sportively about blowing off the top of his head, letting his bowels out, etc. Meantime the Marshal keeps a wakeful eye on the assassin Lee, battles his schemes to break jail, and sees that he is well supplied with bracelets. No wonder that young Mormondom has bestowed upon him the pleasing title of 'The carpet-bagger from h—.'"
